About Me

I am a PHP developer with a passion for learning and creating web applications. I have been coding since I was 10 years old, when I wrote my first lines of code. Furthermore, I always look for new challenges and ways to improve myself. My life motto is "if you don't move forward, you are falling behind". I have a good sense of code quality and coding standards, and I value teamwork and communication. Besides my professional experience, I also have several private projects that showcase my skills and interests. The biggest of them is jaksmakowalo.pl, a site where users can rate anything they ate.
